Feds: Deny Tsarnaev of autopsy pictures

Protective order. Prosecutors are asking a judge to prohibit the release of some Boston Marathon bombing victims' autopsy photos to protect the victims' dignity and privacy. Defense. Tsarnaev's lawyers are refusing to accept any limitation on the accused bomber's ability to view the photos of his alleged victims. Feds: Autopsy pics would 'revictimize' the families

Marathon bombings. Prosecutors requested an order that would bar Dzhokhar Tsarnaev from seeing all autopsy photos of his alleged victims.

Citing the rights and dignity of the Boston Marathon bombing victims, federal prosecutors are asking a judge to bar alleged bomber Dzhokhar Tsarnaev from viewing the autopsy photographs of those killed in the terrorist attack.

Prosecutors filed a motion Monday asking Judge George O'Toole to issue a protective order barring Tsarnaev from personally viewing any autopsy photos of the victims except those offered as evidence by the U.S. Attorney's office or his defense for the trial.

The photographs are extremely graphic, prosecutors said, and giving Tsarnaev the unrestricted right to review them is "completely unnecessary."

"The government maintains, however, that Tsarnaev has no need to review personally the many photos that will not be used against him, and that allowing him to do so would violate the victims' rights to dignity and privacy and subject them to needless harm and suffering," prosecutors wrote in the filing. "Specifically, allowing photos of the mutilated bodies of the victims to be viewed by the man accused of mutilating them would needlessly revictimize the family members in the same way that innocent children who are photographed pornographically are revictimized whenever those photos are seen by others."

Quoted

"[Tsarnaev] does not need to review photos that will not be used against him in order to prepare his case or exercise any of his constitutional rights."

Federal prosecutors, in court documents

Prosecutors said they have made available the photographs for inspection and review by Tsarnaev's lawyers, but would not be providing copies due to their sensitive nature and so Tsarnaev could not review all of them.

According to prosecutors, Tsarnaev's lawyers refused to accept any limitation on his ability to view the photos and requested copies of all of them.

"He does not need to review photos that will not be used against him in order to prepare his case or exercise any of his constitutional rights," prosecutors said in the filing. "To the extent any of the photos might prove helpful to his case, his attorneys are fully capable of identifying them and their potential uses."

Lottery winner busted on sexual abuse charges

An Uxbridge man who won the lottery in 2008 has been arrested for allegedly sexually abusing a young boy.

Daniel Snay, 62, a Level 3 sex offender who won a $10 million state lottery prize in 2008, is headed to jail after being arrested Friday afternoon.

The Worcester Telegram & Gazette reported that police believe Snay is responsible for other sexual assaults that may have occurred in Connecticut and Rhode Island. They're working with authorities in both states. The alleged crimes occurred when the teen was between the ages of 8 and 14, police said. METRO

One Run For Boston 2 kicks off in California

Thousands of runners are once again joining together for a massive relay from California to Massachusetts to raise money for the survivors of the 2014 Boston Marathon bombings.

The One Run for Boston 2 kicked off Sunday in Santa Monica, Calif., and is expected to draw more than 2,000 participants before wrapping up in Boston on April 13, just two days before the Marathon bombing anniversary.

One Run Boston
NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

More than 800 runners are anticipated to cross the Boylston Street finish line that day, according to organizers.

The first One Run took 24 days, kicking off on June 30, 2013 and raised $91,000 for the One Fund.

Organizers said the goal is to raise $1 million this time around. As of press time Monday, the event had raised nearly $225,000.

Runners can still sign up for the race by visiting www.onerunforboston.org.

An infusion to help your hangover

The day after. Forget hair of the dog, greasy food and aspirin.

With St. Patrick's Day falling on a Monday this year, many of Boston's Irish-at-heart are most likely nursing a midweek hangover in their cubicles or classes today.

But rather than reach for the aspirin, Delete Tattoo Removal & Laser Salon on Newbury Street has just the cure — another kind of shot.

The Hangover Helper, a 60 milliliter in-arm push of Vitamin C, B-complex, magnesium, calcium, selenium and zinc, saline and other ingredients, promises to boost metabolism, increase energy, relieve cramps, aid headaches and flush out toxins.

"Usually what happens when you're hungover is you're extremely dehydrated, which causes headaches and muscle cramps. Alcohol is a depressant, so you're tired, you're down," said Elizabeth Schlesinger, a registered nurse at Delete.

The infusion takes between 10 and 15 minutes, and although it usually comes with a price tag of $120, weary walk-of-shamers can grab them for $90 this month as part of a St. Paddy's Day special.

"Literally when I start to push the mixture in people taste a Flintstone Vitamin kind of taste in the back of their throat. That's how immediate it is," said Schlesinger.

New children's zoo planned for Franklin Park

Animal exhibit. The multimillion dollar project will include indoor and outdoor classrooms for kids.

Indoor and outdoor classrooms, featured animal exhibits and active exploration elements are some of the plans for a new children's zoo in Boston.

Plans for a new $6.6 million children's zoo at the Franklin Park Zoo were announced Monday.

Called Nature's Neighborhoods, the project will include active, self-directed exploration and discovery. It will also include featured animal exhibits consisting of red pandas, North American river otters, prairie dogs and more.

"In this day and age when so many, including children, are focused on computer screens and mobile devices, it's important not to lose the connection to nature and our critical role in ensuring the planet remains a healthy, thriving place for generations to come. Nature's Neighborhoods will play a key role in introducing children to relatable ecological concepts in a fun and meaningful way," said John Linehan, president of Zoo New England.

Planning could hold key to plane disappearance

Investigation. Police have searched the premises of both the captain and co-pilot.

A man gestures as he stands in front of messages of prayers and well-wishes for passengers of flight MH370. / GETTY IMAGES

Whether by accident or design, whoever reached across the dimly lit cockpit of a Malaysia Airlines jet and clicked off a transponder to make Flight MH370 vanish from controllers' radars flew into a navigational and technical black hole.

By choosing one place and time to vanish into radar darkness with 238 others on board, the person — presumed to be a pilot or a passenger with advanced knowledge — may have acted only after meticulous planning, according to aviation experts.

Understanding the sequence that led to the unprecedented plane hunt widening across two vast tracts of territory north and south of the Equator is key to grasping the motives of what Malaysian authorities suspect was hijacking or sabotage.

By signing off from Malaysian airspace at 1:19 a.m. on March 8 with a casual "all right, good night," rather than the crisp radio drill advocated in pilot training, a person now believed to be the co-pilot gave no hint of anything unusual.

Two minutes later, at 1:21 a.m. local time, the transponder — a device identifying jets to ground controllers — was turned off in a move that experts say could reveal a careful sequence. REUTERS

Quoted

"Every action taken by the person who was piloting the aircraft appears to be a deliberate one. It is almost like a pilot's checklist."

Third person dies from SXSW crash in Texas capital

A third person has died as a result of a motorist plowing his car into a crowd of people outside a nightclub last week at the South by Southwest festival in Austin, officials said on Monday.

A 26-year-old woman, Sandy Thuy Le, has died. She was one of the five people listed as being in critical condition after the incident last Thursday.

Rashad Charjuan Owens, 21, from Killeen, Texas, has been charged with capital murder for the incident.

Police said Owens fled from a sobriety checkpoint, smashed through a police barricade and then plowed down people, some of them lined up outside a nightclub, over a span of several city blocks.

GM recalls another 1.5 million vehicles

In the XTS, a brake booster pump wiring issue can cause overheating, melting of plastic and a possible engine compartment fire. / GETTY IMAGES

Last Friday. GM was hit with the first U.S. class action lawsuit related to an ignition problem.

General Motors Co. announced three more recalls on Monday, related to airbag deployment and other issues, and said it would take a $300 million charge primarily to cover the costs related to these actions as well as the previous recall for faulty ignition switches.

The No. 1 U.S. automaker, which will take the charge in the first quarter, did not provide a breakdown of how much was related to the ignition-switch recall of more than 1.6 million older-model vehicles that has hurt the company's reputation since it was announced last month.

GM said on Monday that it is recalling more than 1.5 million newer crossover utility vehicles, luxury sedans and full-size vans in three separate recalls. While there were reports of engine compartment fires in two dealer-owned Cadillac XTS sedans, the company said it has received no reports of accidents or injuries related to the three new recalls.

Affected are some 2008-2009 and all 2010-2013 Buick Enclave and GMC Acadia crossovers, some 2009 and all 2010-2013 Chevrolet Traverses and some 2008-2009 and all 2010 Saturn Outlooks. Most of the vehicles were sold in the United States, but some are in Canada and Mexico. REUTERS

The automaker said the latest recalls include 1.18 million midsized crossovers to repair an issue that could lead to the nondeployment of side airbags. It said it will repair the wiring harness of seat-mounted side airbags.

GM is also recalling 303,000 Chevrolet Express and GMC Savana full-size vans to replace plastic material in the passenger instrument panel to meet federal head-impact crash standards for unbelted passengers.

There are very few weddings in which the groom's attire upstages the bride's, but Saturday's nuptials between Motley Crue's Nikki Sixx and model Courtney Bingham is an exception to the rule.

While Bingham, 28, wore a custom-made gown from her aunt's California bridal boutique, Sixx sported a dagger necklace and a black bandana. It was, as they say, "a lot of look."

"Just threw my wedding suit on topped with a ton of chrome hearts jewelry & custom leather chucks W/ an old Keith Richards scarf #I'mReady," he tweeted on Saturday.

Readers, I can't stop staring at him. So many things to address about his wedding photo. Let's look together, shall we?

1 His hair. So very many questions. Can that really be his hair? Really? Remember: Sixx is 55. It's not like most men approaching 60 can rock hair like that. What kind of product do you think he uses? Did he or Bingham spend longer on their wedding 'do? Does he wear the bandana to cover up a receding hairline? Speaking of his best accessory, I love that Sixx is such a romantic as to rock a bandana with a skull and hearts.

2 His other hair. Look very, very closely. Is his goatee lopsided? I want to straighten it out like a crooked painting on the wall. A crooked painting made out of pube-like fabric.

3 His dagger necklace. "Something old, something new, something borrowed and something you can cut your filet mignon with at the reception."

Surprise! Guthrie is married — and pregnant

"Today" co-anchor Savannah Guthrie got married this weekend — and broke the news that she is also four months pregnant.

She and her new husband Michael Feldman announced the big news to guests at their Arizona wedding on Saturday, but asked their friends and family to keep the news quiet. When Guthrie was back at work on Monday morning (not much of a honeymoon, is it?), "Today" played a clip of their wedding — and the happy pregnancy news.

"We are four months pregnant," Guthrie announced to excited guests in the clip, all of whom erupted to their feet in applause. Back on air, Guthrie shared her happiness with viewers. "I'm so happy to tell the world, because I can't suck in this gut anymore."

Talking points

Statham needs 'tough love'

Jason Statham better be careful, as girlfriend Rosie Huntington-Whiteley has reportedly been getting some frank advice from fellow Victoria's Secret model Miranda Kerr about the state of their relationship, according to Radar Online.

"Rosie and Jason have had many ups and downs in their relationship, but the supermodel has begun to lay down the law that if Jason doesn't start getting serious about getting married, she will leave him. But the ultimatum idea didn't come from Rosie herself but her close pal and mentor Miranda," a source says. "After Rosie and Jason have spent four years together, Miranda would like to see her get married. She only wants the best for her friend, so she's urging her to give Jason some tough love."

And apparently Kerr is more than happy to take credit for what happens next: "Miranda has been bragging to other friends in recent weeks that she is steering Rosie in the right direction by advising her to leave Jason if he doesn't propose before the summer," the source adds.

JASON STATHAM AND ROSIE HUNTINGTON-WHITELEY

Barfing is not 'artsy'

Lady Gaga has received plenty of raised eyebrows for letting a performance artist vomit on her during a concert at SXSW last week, but some people were genuinely offended by the act, including Demi Lovato, who took to Twitter to criticize Gaga for glamorizing eating disorders. "Bottom line, it's not 'cool' or 'artsy' at all," Lovato tweeted. "Would you let someone bring a needle and shoot up on you?" Some fans immediately came to Gaga's defense, accusing Lovato of throwing shade, but she would not be deterred. "It's not 'shade' and it's not 'hate.' But someone has to come forward and say it and I'll take the heat for it," she wrote. "Putting the word 'art' in it isn't a free card to do whatever you want without consequences."

No fourth kid for Garner, Affleck

Ben Affleck may have previously hinted that a fourth kid could be in the cards, but Jennifer Garner has effectively put a stop to such talk, according to Radar Online. "Jennifer told her pal that the difference between having two kids and three is 'massive,' and said [2-year-old son] Sam would complete their family. In fact, Jen admits she and Ben had only planned on having two children, and Sam was a wonderful but genuinely true accident," a source says.

"Chasing Maria Menounos" premieres tonight at 10 on Oxygen. / GETTY IMAGES

'Chasing Maria Menounos' gives fans an 'Extra' look

TV. The host's new reality show premieres tonight on Oxygen.

"Chasing Maria Menounos" goes inside the mind and heart of the "Extra" host as she attempts to balance her career with family life.

The show will chronicle Menounos' experiences with her boyfriend of 15 years, Keven Undergaro, and traditional Greek immigrant parents, Costas and Litsa, who want her to get married and have children. As she turns 35, her parents' desire for Menounos to settle down is stronger than ever. Though she respects her family and boyfriend's opinions, she contemplates whether she can support her parents and the friends who depend on her while building a family with Keven and still having some fun.

"It's really tough because I feel like more than ever women are in the same kind of boat as me," Menounos says. "We really don't know when the right time is and we're really excited by our careers. We want to prolong it more than ever."

The show also offers a glimpse into the less glamorous aspects of stardom. Menounos notes that one night she may be dressed up for the Oscars, and the next night she'll be at Chili's with her family.

"There's the me that works in this business, and then there's the real me that is outside of that," Menounos says. "I enjoy the perks of all of this, but there's a reality to it, too."

Menounos is also excited to show viewers her Greek family.

"I think it's nice to see a traditional Greek family at home," Menounos says. "I think it's nice to see someone who made it in this town and stayed in the same relationship they came in with. I don't think you see that very often."

Menounos' boyfriend Keven, who will venture into the spotlight for the first time on the show, also says that viewers will enjoy the peek into their life.

"I think seeing our family, it's aspirational," Undergaro says. "I think a lot of people dream to do better in life. It's nice to know that you can get there and have better things, but that you can still all be close and you still have the same problems that you had when you were a family back in the neighborhood."

For Menounos, home is a place to relax and get away from her hectic life.

"I love being at home with Keven and the dogs and my parents," she says. "And I love cooking. I love watching movies. I love going to the beach."

She's just a regular girl — with an "Extra"-ordinary life.

Quoted

"I've known what I've wanted to do since I was really young. And I've worked really hard to run through every open door and work really hard and make good choices." Menounos

'You Should Have Will change the way

Books. "Admission" author Jean Hanff Korelitz has a new book, "You Should Have Known," about the moments when we should have been paying a little more attention.

Most people pride themselves on knowing when someone is lying. When we hear about former New York Gov. Eliot Spitzer's outrageous illicit affairs or Bernie Madoff's massive Ponzi scheme, we look at their smart and stylish wives and think, "She must have known, right? How could she not have?"

This "should have known" belief is the idea behind Jean Hanff Korelitz's latest novel.

The book's protagonist is Grace, a therapist living the life she's always wanted. Married to a sympathetic pediatric oncologist, she has an intelligent and respectful son and has just written a highly anticipated self-help book cautioning women to hear what men are telling them at the very beginning of a relationship. But when Grace's husband goes missing and she finds herself in the middle of a media frenzy, she's left wondering how she could have missed her own advice.

According to Korelitz, you'd be surprised how many smart women have their own "should have known" moment. "The British publisher asked everyone who worked at the publishing company to submit their 'should have known' moments, and I got to pick the winner. These women are very, very smart. They're working for this great publisher, yet they all seem to have some story where you wanted to look at them and think, 'Really? Really?'"

The winner of the aforementioned contest was a woman who went on a first date with a guy who told her that he saw sexuality as free-flowing and not something you can put in a box. "She dated him for years and, of course, he turned out to be gay," Korelitz muses.

Like Korelitz's other novels — among them "Admission" — this one is about a smart, independent woman who isn't entirely likeable. "Every single one of my novels starts with a woman who seems to have her s— together but is destroyed by the middle or end of the book," she says. "If this is an unconscious choice, it's so unconscious that it might as well be conscious. It's an overwhelming comparative, almost, to look at these women and basically take them apart and strip them down and see what's left."

At the end of this novel, the principal character is a much different woman than the one you meet at the beginning of the book. You might also be changed after finishing "You Should Have Known" — a little more discerning, a little more aware and a little less critical of those wives the camera pans to during the next high-profile press conference.

Quoted

"Every single one of my novels starts with a woman who seems to have her s— together but is destroyed by the end of the book." Korelitz

Taking a shine to southern Portugal

The Algarve gets more than 300 days of sun annually. / ALL PHOTOS CHRIS BUDZILOWICZ

MARTINHAL BEACH RESORT & HOTEL WAS DESIGNED TO HIGHLIGHT THE NATURAL LANDSCAPE.

Martinhal's guests enjoy fresh fish pulled daily from the bay.

Destinations.
Long known among Europeans as a year-round holiday locale, the Algarve is finally getting the attention it deserves from the rest of us.

During the Age of Discovery, a small but mighty Portugal sent out ships to explore Africa, Asia and what was then called the New World (that's us!). Now it's time for us to return the favor.

Although burdened by the recent economic problems, Portugal hasn't wavered as a destination for savvy European travelers seeking sun, fresh seafood and a knockout coastline — one of few in the world from which you can see the sun rise and set over the ocean.

Lately, the Algarve region on the southern coast is coming into its own. Bordered by miles of protected beaches, the Algarve maintains balmy temperatures year-round — sometimes reaching the 70s in the winter — and averages 300 days of sun annually.

Until recently, the Algarve was known mostly to hippie caravaners chasing surf conditions along the coast. And you'll still find plenty of them there. But you'll also start to see more families seeking an affordable and unique holiday. And don't worry — you won't have to sleep on the beach.

Anchoring new development in the Algarve is Martinhal Beach Resort & Hotel (www.martinhal.com), an award-winning seaside resort known as much for its sophisticated design as for its family-friendliness. After opening in 2010, Martinhal soon stood out as an affordable luxury destination that still retains hyper-regional charm.

In designing the resort, owner Chitra Stern and her husband made it a priority to sustain the natural integrity of the Algarve. "It's our responsibility to our children to do that," she tells us. Martinhal's architecture is carefully integrated into the natural landscape, and its restaurants serve only local wine and fish pulled from the bay below. Stern calls it "the freshest fish in the world."

Moreover, Martinhal is one of those rare places where children and adults can enjoy themselves both together and on their own. After having her own children, Stern realized that few vacations truly accommodate every member of the family, so she designed programs at Martinhal that keep kids (from babies to teens) engaged while parents do their own thing. "We try to create moments for everyone in the family," says Stern.

With Martinhal as a base, you can explore the Algarve on trail bikes with a guided tour through small villages and across coastal cliffs. Wind-surfing and scuba-diving lessons are available right in Martinhal's bay.

Tip

Getting there

The Algarve is easily accessible from Lisbon airport. From there, you can take the major highways or enjoy a backroad amble along the coast. If you want to sample the city before relaxing on the coast, Martinhal offers an eight-day package beginning at the Four Seasons Hotel Ritz Lisbon and ending in the Algarve. For rates and information, email res@martinhal.com.

Relax

Indulge in magic hour

A day on the Algarve ends best by watching the sun set over the ocean. Crowds usually form at Cabo de São Vicente, the southwesternmost point in Portugal. But in the spirit of discovery, we recommend grabbing a bottle of Portuguese wine and finding your own viewing spot in one of the many beach coves on the west coast.

Going from screen time to stage time

Interview. What do you do after you conquer Facebook, book publishing and parenthood? If you are Randi Zuckerberg, you head to Broadway.

"I chose to make the main character a girl because I think we could really use more techie girl characters in pop culture," Zuckerberg says of "Dot." / PROVIDED

Since Randi Zuckerberg left Facebook in 2011, she's started the media empire Dot Complicated, released a book by that name and, oh yeah, had a baby. Now she's expanding her philosophy of untangling our wired lives by releasing the children's book "Dot." She's also gearing up for her big Broadway debut in "Rock of Ages." We catch up with her to talk parenting and managing screen time.

What made you want to write a children's book?
I have a son who is almost 3, and everywhere I went — whether it was speaking at a professional business conference or at my son's preschool — all the parents were talking about screen time. Parents want to make sure their kids are getting enough screen time to be competitive with other kids, but they didn't want them to have too much. I thought, "Here I am writing a book about how tech has made our lives both so wonderful and complicated for adults, but it really starts much younger."

That's so true. Even 2-year-olds will try and swipe something like it's an iPhone.
Absolutely! Kids absorb things so easily starting very young. As parents, we can make all these rules until we're blue in the face, but I thought if there was a techie young child other kids could relate to going through fun adventures, maybe it would stick. And even though I have a son, I chose to make the main character a girl because I think we could really use more techie girl characters in pop culture, especially for young children.

How can parents strike the right balance with screen time?
There are a lot of really excellent apps out there that encourage creativity, love for music, love for reading and love for art. They can use tech in ways we could never imagine when we were young, and I think that's really positive in children's lives. Where I start to get [worried] is when tech just replaces the television and becomes a passive medium.

You mean sticking a child in front of an iPad to watch a video?
Right. But I also live in the real world and understand that it happens sometimes. I've had a night where it was just a really long day and I just wanted to have a conversation with my husband, so I gave my son a movie to watch on my iPad. As parents, we already beat ourselves up too much, and tech is an area where you can really cut yourself some slack.

On Broadway

Rockin' out in 'Rock of Ages'

"If you were to ask me when I was in elementary school what my dream in life was, I would have said that it was my dream to sing on Broadway. ... Your dreams come back to find you sometimes," says Zuckerberg about her unlikely new role on Broadway's "Rock of Ages" (she is cast as Regina, a community leader). Zuckerberg says the show's producers approached her after she gave a talk at TEDxBroadway about how Broadway could embrace digital media. "[The producers] thought it would be cool to celebrate their fans using digital and social media. They looked up my TED talk and decided they wanted to invite me to be a part of the show."

Where Your Success Matters.

Increasingly, nurses are expected to advance their education to meet current health care reform initiatives and strengthen the nursing workforce. We invite you to take your journey with us.

The Bay State College RN to BSN program is open to students who possess a valid, unencumbered RN license. This program was designed to allow individuals to further their education while maximizing the use of their previously earned credits and work experience.

Specifically designed for registered nurses who are currently licensed, the program is a hybrid, meaning that students meet on campus and online to complete coursework. What does this mean? You will set your own pace to complete the degree, allowing you to successfully manage your studies, careers and personal life. If pursued full-time, the RN to BSN can be completed in 16 months.

Next class enrolls in May. To find out more information, please contact Admissions at 617-217-9011 or email admissions@baystate.edu.

16% Job Growth Expected for Health Care Management

Health care is the largest industry in the United States and employment growth within the health care sector is expected to increase by 22 percent until the year 2020, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. Jobs in health care management are expected to grow at least 16 percent next year, faster than the average for all occupations. By 2018, at least 45,000 new hospital executive jobs and health care management positions will be created.

Several major factors are currently shaping the job marketing for health care managers. The aging population will create career opportunities for managers in hospices, hospitals and rehab centers, long term care facilities and public health departments. There is a shift from hospital based services to low-overhead health care settings such as ambulatory care facilities and other community based health care delivery services. The integration of information technology, the implementation of electronic health records, and the rise of social media have created the need for health care executives skilled in these areas. The need for cost containment and the trend for mergers between hospitals and practices and the purchase of nonprofit health care companies by for-profit businesses has created an ongoing demand for health care executives who are able to deliver high quality, cost-effective health care services.

My Career. My College.

A master's in Business or in Health Care Management can open the door to positions such as health care administrator, health information manager or elder care manager. Professionals who have health care work experience, especially in specialized health occupations, and strong business management skills are well-positioned to take advantages of the opportunities in this field.

Cambridge College offers the Master of Management degree in three health care concentrations that respond to the growing needs of the health care industry. Health Care Management helps health care professionals advance into supervisory and management positions in hospitals, nursing homes, clinics and other health care settings. Health Care Informatics addresses key area of expertise in health information technology and trains graduates to work as EMR implementation and support specialists, and health information technology project managers. Senior Care Management trains students in the care needs of the elderly and the practical aspects of managing senior care organizations such as nursing homes and home health care agencies, retirement homes and assisted living facilities.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. You have the chance to correct a past mistake should you be willing to do so. A defensive or critical attitude will only make matters worse. Make amends.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. You will gain momentum if you stick to your plans and stay alert to new possibilities. Don't feel compelled to share your ideas with others. The final product will speak for itself.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Do your best to help an older friend or relative in need of assistance. Your calmness and kindness will have a lasting effect on those you encounter.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Let your charm lead the way. An opponent may try to catch you off guard. Maintain a pleasant attitude, speak thoughtfully and don't be coerced into a confrontation.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Your domestic or love life will likely face upset. Focus on projects that will boost your confidence. Consider your options before you deal with an emotional dilemma.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Although you are used to taking action, let someone else set the pace today. He or she may have a different and more effective approach to a mutually nettlesome situation.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. You are capable of multitasking up a storm today. Although your current schedule may have you on the run, it will prepare you for the variety of challenges ahead. Show everyone how capable you are.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Spend some alone time pursuing activities that make you think. Personal relationships may need an adjustment. It's a good time to follow up on a creative project or plan a trip.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. A current situation is likely to confuse you. Do some fact-finding before you take action. Don't feel the urge to gossip or share what you discover.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. You may enjoy being in the spotlight, but while it may be flattering to have all eyes on you, it could damage a relationship with someone special.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb 18. Don't give in to someone's demands. It may be difficult, but you will have to maintain your own course of action, refusing to be swayed by what others do or think. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Letters

Reagan did help the world redecorate without the Iron Curtain

Re: 'The people, not Reagan, broke up USSR' (Metro, March 17) Letter writer Timothy Laren is mistaken in his assertion that Reagan had nothing to do with the breakup of the USSR.

As examples, I give you Hungary in 1956 and Czechoslovakia in 1969. The people revolted but were crushed. With Reagan as president of the United States, he increased our military budget and the oppressed people felt they had a friend in Reagan, and as such were more willing to speak truth to power.

This is why people under communist domination were more willing to speak out for freedom — unlike under the Obama administration, which is harassing patriotic Americans who sought to create 501 (C) 3 organizations.

The comparison with the kings of Spain and France is erroneous and not applicable to what Reagan did.
DON SCHWARZ, VIA EMAIL

To answer Timothy Laren's letter to the editor, Ukraine never used WMDs against its own people. Further, it got rid of its WMDs in exchange for a now-broken promise from Russia never to invade.

As to his other comments, Reagan ended the policy of appeasing the Soviets and his policies led to their economic weakness. He fully supported the oppressed ("Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall!") — unlike Obama, who did nothing during the attempted Green Revolution uprisings in Tehran.

Finally, Laren is also wrong about King Louis XVI, who was our ally in the American Revolution, as he sent troops and great financial support.

Revis speaks

Darrelle Revis explained Monday why he chose the Patriots over a reported 26 other teams that coveted him. "What better organization than the Patriots to be a part of? Look at their track record," Revis said. "I'm here to win games and play hard-nosed football."

UMass will refuse to lose, be ignored

NCAA. The Minutemen are dancing for the first time since 1998.

The Celtics were in full-fledged rebuilding mode as the building formerly known as the FleetCenter opened its doors in 1995, and Boston was in desperate need for an entertaining and successful brand of basketball. John Calipari's UMass Minutemen played their home games an hour and 45 minutes away from the Hub in Amherst, Mass., but there was great buzz in the city that year regarding the newly branded "Commonwealth Classic," pitting the budding Minutemen against Big East stalwart Boston College. UMass, fresh off an Elite Eight appearance in the NCAA tournament months prior, defeated the Eagles, 65-57, in front of a sell-out crowd at the "new Garden" and, somewhat surprisingly, Boston's collective sports attention slowly but surely turned to the "Refuse to Lose" Minutemen.

UMass made it all the way to the Final Four in 1996, due to the efforts of revered players like Marcus Camby, Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso. But the program soon-after fell on hard times when Calipari fled to the NBA and the NCAA came down hard on the program due to the "illegal acceptance of gifts" by Camby.

Consider the penance served. UMass (24-8) will play its first NCAA tournament game in a mere 5,852 days this Friday (2:45 p.m., CBS) against either Iowa or Tennessee. Head coach Derek Kellogg, who was a star point guard under Calipari in the early '90s, has steadily built the program back up since taking the reigns in 2008. In Kellogg's first three seasons on the UMass bench, the Minutemen went 39-53. In the past three seasons, UMass has gone an impressive 70-32.

Now, it's highly unlikely that the Minutemen will regain anything close to the popularity they had in the mid-1990s anytime soon. Still, as March Madness tips off this week, UMass alums in and around the Hub will not only refuse to lose, but will also refuse to be ignored. The basketball buzz emanating from Amherst is back.

Dancing once again

"That was an emotional, great feeling to see UMass pop up on the screen."
UMass head coach Derek Kellogg

Out like a Lion?

UMass should be quite capable of making some noise in the NCAA tourney this weekend.

- The Minutemen are led by senior guard Chaz Williams, who is averaging 15.8 points per game.
- Big man Cady Lalanne (11.4 points per game) and forward Sampson Carter (10.5 points per game) are the two other double-digit scorers for UMass.
